About Joe Cusato and Cusato Management Corp

In 2000 Joe Cusato founded Cusato Management Corp., a full-service general contracting company specializing in additions, renovations, and new construction. Joe's success comes from his commitment to high-quality craftsmanship and fostering strong client relationships.

Joe is a Westchester County native who first worked construction as a teenager, traveling to New York City's East Side to work alongside his uncle. He then spent three years as a minister and two years teaching middle school science before choosing to return to contracting. Joe now lives in South Salem, N.Y. with his wife, Susanne, children, Luke and Elizabeth, and yellow lab Daisy. He is an avid fly fisherman who enjoys fly tying. He also enjoys family and fellowship, while making his own wine and tomato sauce, or sharing a cup of coffee using his specially roasted coffee beans.

Joe came to know Pegasus through his children's participation in the program. They brought their dad to a pumpkin-carving event at the old barn. It was at this event that Joe met former Pegasus executive director Patti Coyle. Patti sought Joe's advice on a project, and a lasting relationship was born.

In 2009 Joe became a Pegasus board member, expanding his support of an organization he deeply believes in. He volunteered to manage the design and construction of the Michele Arnhold Education Center, providing his company's resources at cost and donating his personal fees in kind to Pegasus.

All of us at Pegasus are deeply grateful to Joe and his family, his outstanding team at Cusato Management, and all of the talented contractors who have helped make the Michele Arnhold Center project a reality. We can't wait to see the many ways this new facility will benefit the incredible participants we serve!
